

Excerpt from THE BERKELEY TIMES

Community Medical Center Orthopedic Surgeon Named Official Team Doctor For Area Basketball Tournament

TOMS RIVER-Daniel Fox, MD, a board-certified orthopedic surgeon and chairman of the department of Orthopedic Surgery at Community Medical Center, has been named the Official Team Doctor for the Jersey Shore Invitational Tournament, a four-day basketball event featuring the nation's best college players.

The First Annual Jersey Shore Invitational Tournament will take place at the Ritacco Center on April 27 - 30. The event brings college basketball's top graduating seniors to Ocean County where they will compete in the region's first ever NCAA All-Star Tournament.

The tournament will be comprised of seven regional all-star teams (East, Northeast, South, Midwest, Great Plains, Mountain West, and West) and an international all-star team, which will consist of international student athletes that have played in the NCAA.

In addition to being the Official Team Doctor for the tournament, Dr. Fox was responsible for assigning the entire medical staff to the tournament. Dr. Fox is currently the Official Team Physician for the New Jersey X-Treme professional indoor football team which plays their home games at the Continental Airlines Arena.

"It is a privilege to participate in the First Annual Jersey Shore Invitational Tournament," Dr. Fox said. "I am proud to have the opportunity to meet and work with such an elite group of athletes."

For more information on the tournament or to order tickets, visit www.jsitournament.com.